

International Center for Transitional Justice (ICTJ)

Company Description
Intern Colombia is working in partnership with an international organisation that promotes justice in countries that have endured human rights abuses, either under repression or in conflict. They work with victims, civil society groups, and national and international organizations to restore confidence in the rule of law, heal fractured communities, ensure redress for victims and to help prevent atrocities from happening again. The type of human rights abuses that they focus on may involve mass killings, forced disappearances, torture, rape, massive displacement, forced recruitment of children and a myriad of other crimes. Our partner helps societies recover from such profound and systemic failures.
